

Hopefully before it's too late. Condominium associations need to protect everyone's investment in the overall property against flood damage. Especially since floods are the #1 natural disaster in this country and occur in all 50 states in places you'd least expect.

The good news is that under a special Residential Condominium Building Association Policy (RCBAP), offered by the federally backed National Flood Insurance Association you can do this easily by purchasing flood insurance for each residential building, as opposed to each unit. Unit owners, however, will still need to purchase a separate policy to protect their belongings and improvements made to their unit.
